5. Typical healthcare sector

Resilient demand

- Demand mostly driven by aging and by hearing loss prevalence (rather than economic cycle)
- Increasing expectations of well-being and quality of life

Centrality of service

- Customers choose service providers and trust them for product selection
- Relationship with healthcare professional is a key driver for satisfaction and repurchase

Need for regulation

- Typical requirements of medical services (e.g., professional education, product approval, operating rules)
- Welfare policies dedicated to customer support (i.e., reimbursement scheme)

| EMEA   | Mid-to-high-single digit                    |  |

Key drivers

- Increase store productivity
- Leverage increasing scale across all cost base
- Increased marketing investments (>10% 2015-18 CAGR) generating more than proportional revenues uplift

Expected margin expansion

>150bps

EBITDA margin

In addition, positive impact on net profit driven by decreasing tax rate

Strong cash flow generation will support cash-out for piecemeal acquisitions and capex

Cash-out for piecemeal acquisitions

- Network expansion
  - ~60 stores p.a. in both Germany and France

Capex

- Network expansion and upgrade
  - New openings
  - Relocations and refurbishments
- Digital transformation and innovative service model
- Maintenance capex

Expected capex and cash-out

~€300m

Cumulated
2016-18

Strong cash flow generation will lead to further deleverage
